Insurance Lawyers Windsor - If an insurance firm violates the terms of a written contract you are eligible to file a suit. However, the court typically just forces the insurance firms to pay what it would have owed you under contract.

If an insurance company has withheld payments deliberately, you could be qualified for extra-contractual damages. These damages might be awarded if the insurance firm ignores or fabricates evidence in addition to providing incomplete data of your claim. The damages granted comprise expenses such as compensation for mental suffering as well as interest payments and the loss of RRSPs. Exemplary and punitive damages are granted when insurance companies display especially malicious conduct.
